OIL PRICE MAY ADJUST ITSELF

Rise in Healdton Field Will Obviate State Hearing, Thinks Magnolia Co.

ASKS DELAY, ANYWAY

Corporation Commission Will Be Guided Solely by Wishes of the Producers

DEVELOPMENTS in the Healdton oil field, following the filing of a petition by producers of that field with the corporation commission asking that body to fix a price for crude oil not less than 35 cents, and which would test the price-making power of the commission, may warrant other action.

The attorney general's office Thursday received a letter from G. C. Green, general attorney for the Magnolia, which operates the only pipe line in the Healdton field, asking that body to hearing, set for November 10, be postponed at least until December 10. Certain elements of the proposed investigation require that sufficient time should be allowed for inspection, suggests the letter. A gauge of the field would have to be taken to ascertain certain information that will be asked from the companies operating in the field, and this information could not be obtained under thirty days, it is said.

Then another feature should be taken into consideration, it is suggested. When the petition asking for the action by the commission, was filed, oil was then selling for 85 cents. It had increased five cents just a few days before. Since the petition was filed it has increased ten cents which makes it now 45 cents. This is within ten cents of the price suggested by the producers who are complaining.

Mr. Greer in his letter calls attention to the general increase in price of fuel oil. As the major portion of the oil taken from the Healdton field is used for that purpose, it is believed that the price may by reason of the future conditions of the fuel oil market adjust itself in conformity with the wishes of the producers.

The commission will be guided solely by the wishes of the producers, and the matter has been placed before them. If they wish to go ahead with the hearing it will be held on November 10, the time originally set, but if they agree to wait, then the date will probably be passed to December 10.
